FLASHBACK 1935: When one thinks of wrestling families today, the names Von Erich, Funk, Anderson, and Dudley come to mind. But back in the 1930s, the most influential wrestling family was undoubtedly the Duseks. One of the reasons they were as tough as they were was because they pushed each other in training sessions. On the bottom is Emil Dusek, with (left to right) Ernie, Joey, and Rudy.

THE 10 BIGGEST NEWS STORIES OF 1998

1. McMahon Goes To War With Austin

It started with a simple answer to a simple question. Just days before WrestleMania XIV, Kevin Kelly asked Vince McMahon if he wanted Steve Austin to beat Shawn Michaels for the WWF title. McMahon responded with a stern and sarcastic, "Oh, hell no."

Those three words marked the official beginning of one of the most intense wars ever waged in wrestling. McMahon wanted a respectable "Corporate Champion," and Austin neither fit the mold nor tried to fit the mold. Predictably, Austin became more rebellious. Unpredictably, McMahon turned into arguably the most hated man in the sport.

The battle between the millionaire owner and his most popular employee has gotten more and more complicated in recent months. "Stone-Cold" isn't just at war with McMahon now. He's up against an army of corporate lackeys.

How this war will ultimately end is anyone's guess, but who would have thought it would have gone this far in the first place?

2. Undeclared Goldberg Wins WCW World title

With most major titles changing hands more frequently than ever and so many wrestlers jumping from federation to federation, is there any such thing as an era anymore? Well, Bill Goldberg did his best to begin his own on July 6, when he defeated Hollywood Hogan for the WCW World title in front of more than 40,000 fans at the Georgia Dome.

Up to that point, Goldberg had amassed an impressive undefeated streak. He had gone from mid-card novelty to main-event monster—all in his rookie year! He rolled over Raven for the U.S. title, but that wasn't enough for him. After proving himself worthy of a World title shot by dominating and pinning Scott Hall earlier on the July 6 Nitro, he speared and jackhammered Hogan and got the belt. It was an unforgettable night for Goldberg and all the fans in attendance.

It is safe to say the Goldberg era in WCW has begun.

3. The WWF Rises From The Ashes

A year ago, we weren't just wondering what the future of the WWF held. We were wondering if the WWF even had a future. It was clearly the number-two federation in North America, and judging by the all-important Monday night Nielsen numbers, it was a fairly distant second to WCW. Nitro was thrashing Raw week after week after week.

So how did WWF owner Vince McMahon respond? By turning bad. While his motivation was his hatred of Austin and not the chance to increase his TV ratings, his change of philosophy brought about the long-awaited change of fortune for the company. The WWF of 1998 did not resemble the WWF of 1988 at all. It barely resembled the one from 1996. It became a WWF not for the weak of heart or the easily offended. It is also a WWF that record numbers of people are watching.

4. Wrestling Goes Mainstream Again

Who said the mid-'80s wrestling boom could never be duplicated? In 1998, wrestling got more mainstream coverage than perhaps anyone could have ever anticipated. As TV ratings rose, magazines such as Time, Newsweek, Rolling Stone, People, and TV Guide ran stories on the sport.

Television shows followed suit, as magazine-format programs featured segments on wrestling and wrestlers visited the likes of Jay Leno, Regis and Kathie Lee, and Ricki Lake on the talk show circuit. Quite a few pro basketball and football players were spotted giving famous wrestling hand signs and wearing wrestling merchandise.

In a few cases, celebrities got directly involved in the action. Boxer Mike Tyson refereed the main event of WrestleMania XIV, while NBA superstars Karl Malone and Dennis Rodman (pictured), the NFL's Kevin Greene, and Tonight Show host Jay Leno stepped through the ropes to settle differences. Even Judge Mills Lane got in on the fun when he handed down a legal decision that could have affected the future of the WWF World title.

5. Jesse Ventura Elected Governor Of Minnesota

In July, he was a political sideshow. Minnesota gubernatorial candidate Jesse "The Body" Ventura had the support of less than 10 percent of those people polled. He was far behind his well-heeled and better-financed opponents. But that didn't deter the former mayor of Brooklyn Park, Minnesota.

Through a grassroots effort that included e-mail communication and unconventional political advertisements, support for Ventura increased. Eventually, it became a legitimate three-way race. Many Minnesotans who voted in November were voting for the first time. Most of the first-timers voted for Ventura. That was enough to put the former Navy SEAL, wrestler, and movie star over the top.

Suddenly, Ventura, who changed his nickname to "The Mind," was a national media darling. He appeared on Meet The Press, The Tonight Show, and The Late, Late Show, signed a six-figure book deal, and will be the subject of both an A & E Biography and a TV movie.

Ironically, the wrestling villain who once said, "Win if you can, lose if you must, but always cheat" became a political hero basking in the glow of a fair victory.

6. Hollywood Hogan Announces His Retirement

In any other context, Hollywood Hogan's retirement would be the biggest news story of the year. However, Hogan hasn't been too good at telling the truth over the past two-plus years. While the announcement itself was monumental (he made it on The Tonight Show), not many who follow the sport believe he will stay away for long.

In spite of his recent antics, Hollywood Hogan is still the most recognized wrestler in the sport's history. He helped usher in the rock 'n' wrestling era in the 1980s and helped found the singlemost successful wrestling clique, the New World Order. He dominated both major American promotions, winning five world titles in the WWF and four in WCW.

Whether he really plans to run for President remains to be seen, but we probably have not seen the last of Hollywood Hogan in the ring.

7. The NWO Splits In Two

It all started with Scott Hall's unscheduled appearance on the May 27, 1996, Nitro. Then Kevin Nash joined his side. However, the insurgence didn't gain real momentum until Hulk Hogan became part of the group. The New World Order, officially formed in July 1996, quickly became the most powerful wrestling clique in the world and even threatened to take over WCW.

But when you're dealing with major superstars, you deal with major egos. Eventually, the group, which was adding new members all the time, began to crumble. Tiffs turned into fights. Fights turned into battles. Battles became full-fledged feuds. By late-1997, Kevin Nash had enough of his leader, Hogan. He decided the real NWO spirit could live on in another incarnation.

Comprised of original black and white members Nash, Konnan, and Randy Savage, along with WCW stars Sting and Lex Luger, NWO Wolfpac was born. The remaining members of the NWO sided with Hogan in a clique called NWO Hollywood. The two factions did battle many, many times, but neither has emerged as the more dominant group.

8. Ric Flair Returns

In April, WCW was able to do to Ric Flair what many opponents could not—take him out and keep him out of the sport he loves. The "Nature Boy" got into a legal tussle with WCW President Eric Bischoff over a breach of contract allegation. Flair, it seems, decided to attend his son's amateur wrestling championship rather than a WCW event. So WCW filed a lawsuit against Flair, and for about five months, he did not appear on a single WCW program.

The wrestling world was buzzing with rumors. Would Flair ever return to WCW? Would he jump to the WWF? In September, all the rumors were finally laid to rest when Flair made an emotional and triumphant return to WCW, much to the chagrin of his boss (their legal troubles were far from over). The occasion was the reunion of The Four Horsemen.

A teary-eyed Flair emerged from the dressing room area as the ovation from the fans in Greenville, South Carolina, became almost deafening. He did not stride to the ring in his usual cocky manner; he just wanted to show gratitude to his fan base. His speech, however, eventually turned into a verbal attack on Bischoff.

What an emotional night!

9. Rest In Peace

It was a year in which we lost superstars of the past and the future.

Louie Spicolli (pictured) had just received his big break when he left ECW for the bright lights of WCW. He had found his niche as an assistant in the NWO, providing back-up to Scott Hall and Kevin Nash, when he was found dead in his grandmother's former residence in San Pedro, California. It was later determined that he died of heart disease.

Junkyard Dog, on the other hand, was a man who hadn't been in the news much in recent years. He wrestled only occasionally, but he was honored as a hardcore legend at ECW's Wrestlepalooza in May. On June 2, JYD (real name Sylvester Ritter) apparently fell asleep while driving near Forest, Mississippi, and crashed his car into a concrete structure. He was pronounced dead shortly thereafter.

Two other legends who died in 1998 were Bobo Brazil, the master of the coco-butt, and Sky Low Low, perhaps the most famous midget wrestler of all-time. The sport lost many other colorful personalities as well, including Giant Haystacks (Loch Ness), Christine Jarrett, June Byers, Terry Garvin, Jack Brickhouse, Al Napier, Shane Shamrock, Walter Palmer, Dan Coates, and Buddy Lee.

10. The Sandman Leaves ECW

ECW may not be as big as the WWF or WCW, but it does have its share of big stars. And The Sandman may have been the biggest of all. Sandman might not be well-known to those who don't follow ECW, but he embodied the spirit of ECW as an extreme promotion. He'd think nothing of putting his body on the line for the sake of a victory and the fans who packed the ECW Arena to see their beer-guzzling, cigarette-smoking hero. No one could ever imagine an ECW without The Sandman.

That is why the announcement of his signing with WCW shocked ECW fans. Predictably, some of them called him a sellout. However, given how much abuse Sandman's body has taken over the last few years, it's hard to blame him for jumping at the chance to sign a lucrative long-term contract. Without fanfare and without a formal farewell, The Sandman packed his bags and headed south.

Rest easy, ECW fans. No matter what form the WCW Sandman takes, he'll probably always remain a tad extreme.

1998: THE YEAR IN WRESTLING

In this section, we provide an overview of some of the more memorable events of the year just passed. For a look at more memorable dates throughout wrestling history, please turn to page 110.

January 4: Riki Choshu wrestles his final card at the Tokyo Dome, competing in five matches. Choshu defeats Kauyuki Fujita, pins Yutaka Yoshie, forces Tatsutoshi Takaiwa to submit, loses to Takashi Iizuka, then pins Jushin Liger in his final bout.

January 8: WCW Thunder debuts at 8 p.m. on TBS, giving WCW two weekly live shows on prime-time cable. Thunder later changes its format to live broadcasts on alternate weeks.

January 10: Former heavyweight fighter Mike

Tyson and the WWF agree on a deal that allows Tyson to serve as special "enforcer" for the Steve Austin vs. Shawn Michaels World title match at WrestleMania XIV in Boston.

January 13: Eric Bischoff is promoted to president of WCW while Nick Lambros is promoted to executive vice president. (Lambros would later resign his post to accept an executive position with Turner Sports) ... Former Road Warriors' manager Paul Ellering finishes 10th at the John Beargrease Dog Sled Marathon in Minnesota. Ellering was in second place with one day left in the race, but slowed near the end.

January 20: Bobo Brazil, one of professional wrestling's most influential black athletes and a WWF Hall of Famer, dies from complications due to a stroke in St. Joseph, Michigan, at age 74.

January 24: Dusty Rhodes becomes a member of the New World Order after blindsiding Larry Zbyszko during his match against Scott Hall. Rhodes then opens his shirt to reveal an NWO shirt underneath.

January 26: Use of the power bomb is banned from use in all WCW competition by the WCW Executive Committee Chairman J.J. Dillon after The Giant suffers a concussion when being power-bombed by Kevin Nash at Souled Out on January 24.

January 27: Japan's WAR promotion announces it will be shutting down at the end of February. WAR President Masato Motakei blames poor ticket sales.

Eric Bischoff: Upward bound

January 31: WCW attempts to do a live pay-per-listen from a Boston show, but technical difficulties cause the PPL to be canceled. The $7.95 cost was refunded to all who paid for it.

February 13: Independent wrestler Gary Dean Mabe, who wrestles as "Handsome" Bill Armstrong, is charged with two counts of statutory rape, two counts of statutory sex offenses, and two counts of taking indecent liberties with a minor, in connection with an incident with a 10-year-old girl. The case was still pending at press time.

The Steiners: Ugly fallout

February 15: Louie Spicolli (Muciollo), 27, is found dead at his home in San Pedro, California. The official cause of death, as determined by the Los Angeles Coroner's office on April 21, was arteriosclerotic heart disease caused by hypertrophic cardiomyopathy syndrome (enlarged heart).

February 16: Nitro draws a 5.1 Nielsen rating, setting its all-time record high. The show aired unopposed since Raw was preempted for the Westminster Dog Show on the USA Network.

February 17: "Macho Man" Randy Savage receives the prestigious Harvard Lampoon's 1998 Real Man of the Year award on the steps of the Lampoon Castle in Harvard Square in Cambridge, Massachusetts. The award, along with honorary Lampoon membership, is given each year to the male who best exemplifies universal manliness.

February 18: Arison, a women's wrestling promotion owned by Aja Kong, holds its first card at Korakuen Hall in Tokyo. It is the first women's show ever broadcast on pay-per-view in Japan, but draws sparse ratings.

February 22: Scott Steiner turns against his brother, Rick, during a match against Kevin Nash and Scott Hall at SuperBrawl in San Francisco, then joins the NWO. Scott's attack cost the Steiners their WCW tag titles. Also, on the show, Juventud Guerrera loses his mask after being defeated by TV champion Chris Jericho.

February 27: A near-riot takes place at a WCW show in Lincoln, Nebraska, when rowdy fans object to Chris Jericho's negative remarks about the Nebraska Cornhuskers. Ringside fans are pelted with garbage until 30 cops are called in to stop the incident. Another disturbance occurs later in the card after Curt Hennig makes a remark about 'Huskers coach Tom Osbourne.

March 3: Pit Bulls I and II are placed on three years probation for admittedly selling steroids and marijuana in 1995. Gary Wolf, 30, and Anthony Durante, 29, are fined $2,000 each and ordered to return the $7,600 they grossed from the drug sales.

April 13: For the first time in 83 head-to-head meetings, dating back to June 10, 1996, Raw finally defeats Nitro in the Nielsen ratings, 4.6-4.3

March 15: Former wrestling announcer Dan Coates, 88, dies at his Box Canyon Ranch in Weatherford, Texas. For 25 years, Coates announced for KTVT-Channel 11's Saturday Night Wrestling shows from Fort Worth's North Side Coliseum.

Junkyard Dog: Victim of a tragic auto accident

April 21: WCW begins legal action against Ric Flair for breach of contract. Flair failed to appear at several shows, prompting WCW to file a $2-million suit with the Fulton County Superior Court. Flair later countersues.

April 22: Buff Bagwell sustains spinal shock syndrome after receiving a top rope bulldog from Rick Steiner on a live Thunder broadcast. Bagwell is paralyzed in the ring for four minutes but regains mobility. He later undergoes successful surgery to repair damage done to his C3 and C5 vertebrae.

April 27: Both Raw and Nitro are broadcast from the Norfolk, Virginia, area. Raw sets an all-time record rating with a 5.7 overall rating as DeGeneration X stages a mock invasion of the Scope, where Nitro is being held.

April 28: William G. Kinney II, who wrestles as Tiny, is arrested after leading police on an eight-mile chase in Pennsylvania. He is charged with reckless endangerment, simple assault, resisting arrest, disorderly conduct, and a traffic violation.

May 19: A 34-year-old woman is critically injured when a fire erupts in a restroom at the Nashville Arena during a WWF show. The woman reportedly flushed the toilet and then caught on fire. Fire marshall John Petty said it was not clear where or how the fire started.

June 2: Junkyard Dog, 45, one of wrestling's most beloved figures, dies in a car crash near Forest, Mississippi after falling asleep at the wheel. JYD was coming home from his daughter's graduation.

June 8: Dennis Rodman appears on Nitro instead of reporting to practice for the Chicago Bulls' NBA final series. Rodman calls the appearance "preparation" for his match with Hollywood Hogan vs. Dallas Page and Karl Malone at Bash at the Beach.

June 11: THQ Inc., in partnership with JAKKS Pacific, a premier manufacturer and marketer of children's toys, signs a 10-year exclusive agreement with TitanSports to produce WWF electronic games. The first games are scheduled to be released at the end of 1999.

June 20/21: The WWF cancels shows in Oklahoma City and Tulsa to give its main stars, including Steve Austin, Kane, and The Undertaker, a chance to recover from various illnesses and injuries.

June 22: Joey Styles begins legal action against the WWF, seeking damages for the unauthorized use of footage of him and Steve Austin from a 1995 ECW show.

July 6: Buff Bagwell appears on Nitro for the first time since his accident. Bagwell, in a wheelchair, is escorted to the runway by his doctor for an interview with Gene Okerlund ... ECWA announcer "Big" Al Napier commits suicide by hanging in his Wilmington, Delaware, home. Napier had been battling personal problems and was recently fired from his day job.

July 20: USA Network announces the addition of Sunday Night Heat, a one-hour WWF wrestling show to be aired from 7 to 8 p.m. ... Former woman wrestler June Byers dies at age 76 at her home in Houston.

July 30: Scott Hall is served two summons by Baton Rouge Police Department for allegedly fondling an unidentified 56-year-old woman in the parking lot of a Radisson Hotel. Hall was also charged with disturbing the peace by public intoxication.

August 11: Shane McMahon, 28, is named president of New Media at TitanSports, parent company of the World Wrestling Federation. In his new capacity, McMahon would be responsible for exploring, developing, and managing the WWF's interactive network.

August 17: Maryland Championship Wrestling light heavyweight champ Shane Shamrock, 23, is shot and killed in Glen Burnie, Maryland, by Ann Arundel police officer Pete Scarpetta after pulling a knife during a domestic dispute with his former girlfriend, Laura Hamlet ... Former wrestler and WWF promoter Terry Garvin dies of stomach cancer at age 60 in New England. Garvin often competed in six-man tag teams with brothers, Ronnie and Jimmy.

September 8: WCW competitor Hacksaw Jim Duggan declares that he has been diagnosed with cancer and will retire from professional wrestling. Two days later, Duggan undergoes successful surgery to remove a cancerous kidney ... The Sandman, arguably the most popular wrestler in ECW history, shocks the wrestling world when he signs a three-year deal with WCW.

September 9: The Giant surrenders to Nassau County authorities almost three months after allegedly breaking the jaw of Robert Sawyer Jr., a 29-year-old Levittown, New York, man during a fight in the dining room of a Uniondale Marriott.

September 12: Former ECW TV champion Taz is arrested outside the David L. Lawrence Convention Center in Pittsburgh and charged with indecent exposure and contributing to the corruption of a minor after a tanning salon attendant claims Taz exposed himself to her.

Shane McMahon: Third-generation WWF exec

September 14: Although Ric Flair and WCW remained deadlocked in their legal battle, "The Nature Boy" makes an emotional return to Nitro when he joins Arn Anderson, Dean Malenko, Steve McMichael, and Chris Benoit for a Four Horsemen reunion in Greenville, South Carolina.

October 2: Scott Hall is arrested and charged with felonious criminal mischief for using a key to scratch the side of a white limousine outside of an Orlando, Florida, nightclub.

October 26: New York magazine's cover subjects are Vince McMahon and The Undertaker. Inside is an eight-page feature on McMahon.

November 3: Capturing 37 percent of the votes, Reform Party candidate Jesse Ventura wins the 1998 Minnesota gubernatorial election.

November 16: Bam Bam Bigelow crashes Nitro and challenges World champion Bill Goldberg to a match the same night. Goldberg accepts, but is attacked by Bigelow on the runway prior to their match. WCW Executive Committee Chairman J.J. Dillon is fired by Eric Bischoff after the confrontation.

November 26: Hollywood "Hulk" Hogan announces his retirement on The Tonight Show, and indicates that he will run for the presidency of the United States in 2000.

November 27: Dennis Rodman files suit against WCW in Orange County (Los Angeles) Superior Court for failure to pay him the full amount of money he was entitled to for wrestling at the Bash at the Beach ... Scott Hall falls asleep at the wheel in Orlando, Florida, smashing his car but sustaining only minor injuries. Hall passes a breathalyzer test issued by police immediately after the crash.

November 28: Scott Steiner is arraigned on charges of aggravated assault and terroristic threats stemming from an April incident in which he allegedly threatened to run over Paul Kasparsen in south Cherokee County, Georgia. Police said Steiner struck Kasparsen twice with his truck, but the Department of Transportation worker was not seriously injured.

November 30: THQ Inc. releases WCW Nitro, the first wrestling game for personal computers.

November 30: TV Guide features the WWF vs. WCW war in its cover story. The issue is distributed with one of four collector's covers: Steve Austin, Bill Goldberg, The Undertaker, or Hollywood Hogan. The issue sells 65 percent of its newsstand copies, the best sales percentage since the Princess Diana special.

December 6: The WWF runs its second U.K.-only pay-per-view from the London Arena before a sellout crowd of 10,441 ... WWF Vice President and announcer Jim Ross suffers a bout of Bell's palsy while calling a match, temporarily forcing him from an on-air role with the WWF.

December 14: Rolling Stone and People Weekly magazines get on the wrestling bandwagon, running articles on Steve Austin and Bill Goldberg, respectively ... Ric Flair suffers what was believed at the time to be a heart attack in the ring at the Ice Palace in Tampa during an interview with Gene Okerlund. Tests proved, however, that he did not.

December 18: Sable does an all-day photo shoot for a future edition of Playboy.

December 27: Bill Goldberg's heralded winning streak is halted at Starrcade by Kevin Nash, who unknowingly receives outside assistance from Scott Hall before pinning Goldberg and capturing the WCW World title. Nash becomes the fifth man (following Buddy Rogers, Ric Flair, Hulk Hogan, and Randy Savage) to hold both the WWF and NWA/WCW World titles.

December 28: Ric Flair wins administrative control of WCW by thrashing Eric Bischoff on Nitro. With The Four Horsemen shielding the ring from the attempted interference of NWO Hollywood, Flair beat Bischoff first by submission with a figure-four leglock, and then eliminated any chance for controversy by pinning the WCW president ... Shawn Michaels is fired by Vince McMahon as WWF commissioner during Raw for his role in allowing Mankind to beat up his son two weeks earlier. Michaels kayos McMahon with a superkick at the conclusion of the broadcast.

STATISTICS

FOR PROFESSIONAL WRESTLERS

On the pages that follow, you'll find statistics—height, weight, hometown, year (or specific date) of pro debut, and birthday—for hundreds of professional wrestlers worldwide. This list does not purport to be 100 percent comprehensive in presenting every wrestler there's ever been, but it does strive to be 100 percent accurate with the information it does present. Many birthdays and pro debuts have been double- and triple-checked through cross-references. Even so, errors may have crept into the list, and there is information that may yet be added (such as determining the specific date of a pro debut, not just the year, or month and year). We invite anyone with additions and/or corrections to this list to send your information to: PWI ALMANAC, Box 1148, Ft. Washington, PA 19034. We'll be more than happy to update our list for next year's edition.

PRO WRESTLING ILLUSTRATED ACHIEVEMENT AWARDS

In this section, you'll find a complete listing of all PWI Achievement Award winners. We've also provided a comprehensive listing of runners-up (which were first reported in 1976) for all awards.

Award winners were first presented annually in the pages of Pro Wrestling Illustrated effective with our March 1982 issue, and continue to appear in the March edition each year. Prior to that, awards appeared in Sports Review Wrestling (1980 awards in the March 1981 edition), Sports Review Wrestling Annual (1977-79 awards in Spring 1978, '79, and '80 editions), and Victory Sports Series Wrestling Annual and Yearbook editions (1972-76 awards in issues #4, 7, 11, 14, and 18).

TITLE HISTORIES

On the pages that follow, you'll find a comprehensive listing of champions for several of the sport's major titles, both current and defunct. The information we've gathered comes from our own computer and text files; reference sources such as several decades worth of newspaper reports and arena programs; and a superlative reference tool, Wrestling Title Histories, edited by Royal Duncan and Gary Will (for information, contact Royal Duncan, 7600 N. Galena Road, Peoria, Illinois 61615). Listings for currently active championships are updated through December 31, 1998.

FOOTNOTES:

- ¹Buddy Rogers won a tournament in April 1963 in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, to become the first WWWF champion; he defeated Antonino Rocca in the final.
- ²Andre the Giant scored a controversial pinfall when Hulk Hogan lifted his shoulder at the two-count, but referee Earl Hebner (the twin brother of assigned referee Dave Hebner) continued the count. Andre's reign as champion lasted less than two minutes, as he then gave the belt to Ted DiBiase; WWF President Jack Tunney later ruled that transaction invalid, vacated the title, and ordered a tournament held for WrestleMania IV.
- ³This was a tournament final at WrestleMania IV.
- ⁴WWF President Jack Tunney was at ringside for the bout, but was knocked unconscious by the interfering Ric Flair. Undertaker's manager, Paul Bearer, also interfered by attempting to hit Hulk Hogan with his urn. Hogan ducked, and Bearer hit Undertaker instead. Hogan grabbed the urn, threw ashes in Undertaker's face, then pinned him. The following day, Tunney declared the title vacant, with a new champion to be determined at the January 19, 1992, Royal Rumble.
- ⁵Ric Flair won the title by winning the 30-man Royal Rumble.
- ⁶This was WrestleMania IX. Bret Hart had Yokozuna in the sharpshooter leglock. Mr. Fuji threw salt in Hart's eyes, enabling Yokozuna to make the pin. Hulk Hogan came to the ring, made an impromptu challenge to Yokozuna, and the two wrestled. Fuji tried throwing salt again during the match with Hogan, hit Yokozuna instead, and Hogan scored the title-winning pin in just 25 seconds. Total length of Yokozuna's reign: 2:07.
- ⁷After Shawn Michaels vacated the title due to a knee injury, Bret Hart outlasted Steve Austin, Big Van Vader, and The Undertaker in a four-way elimination match to win his fourth WWF championship.
- ⁸Upon orders from WWF head Vince McMahon, Earl Hebner declared that Bret Hart had submitted to Shawn Michaels' "sharpshooter," when, in fact, he hadn't.
- ⁹Steve Austin lost the title in a September 27 triple threat match when he was simultaneously pinned by The Undertaker and Kane. The title was declared vacant one night later. When no official winner was declared in a match between Kane and Undertaker for the vacant title on October 18, a 14-man tournament for the belt was scheduled; this was the tournament final.

FOOTNOTES:

¹Pat Patterson won a September 1979 tournament in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, to become the first Intercontinental champion.

²This was a tournament final. The Ultimate Warrior was stripped of the title by WWF President Jack Tunney shortly after his WrestleMania VI WWF World title win over Hulk Hogan.

³Razor Ramon and Rick Martel were the last two competitors left in a 20-man battle royal to determine the top contenders to the title. Shawn Michaels was stripped of the title by WWF President Jack Tunney, who read a statement prior to the battle royal claiming the action was due to Michaels having failed to meet certain contractual obligations.

⁴The title had been held up earlier in the evening as the result of a controversial match between Jeff Jarrett and Bob Holly. This rematch filled the title vacancy.

⁵Shawn Michaels was forced to forfeit the title to Dean Douglas at this In Your house pay-per-view due to an injury that occurred a week earlier.

⁶The title had been held up earlier in the evening after a controversial match between Goldust and Vega; this was a rematch.

⁷This was a tournament final; Johnson had been forced to vacate the title after suffering a kidney injury in an altercation with Faarooq.

⁸This was a tournament final to fill the vacancy created when Steve Austin was unable to defend the title due to a spinal injury.

⁹Steve Austin forfeited the title to Rocky Maivia who was awarded the belt by WWF head Vince McMahon.

¹⁰This was the final match of a tournament held to fill the vacancy created when Helmsley was stripped due to a knee injury.

WWF WORLD TAG TEAM TITLE

(NOTE: The Worldwide Wrestling Federation was formed in 1963; the WWWF tag team title was known as the United States tag team title until 1967, when the title became vacant because Bruno Sammartino (whose tag team championship partner at the time was Spiros Arion) was unable to defend both the U.S. tag team title and the WWWF heavyweight title. From 1969 through 1971, the title was known as the WWWF International tag team title. In late-1971, the championship became known as the WWWF World tag team title.)

FOOTNOTES:

¹Antonino Rocca and Miguel Perez were the first U.S. tag team titlists.

²Buddy Rogers had left Johnny Valentine and the title; Valentine chose Chief Big Heart as his partner.

³Antonio Pugliese left the United States in June 1967; Spiros Arion chose Arnold Skaaland as his championship partner.

⁵The Mongols left the WWF in early-1971, bringing the International tag team belts with them.

⁶This is a tournament final. On November 12, 1971, "Crazy" Luke Graham & Tarzan Tyler defeated The Mongols, thus quieting any disputes that the Mongols remained uncrowned champions.

⁷In June 1975, Victor Rivera announced he was giving up his half of the title; Dominic DeNucci was allowed to choose a new partner, and chose "Irish" Pat Barrett.

⁸The Executioners were stripped of the title as the result of a match against Chief Jay Strongbow & Billy White Wolf that was televised on October 26, 1976, during which a third masked Executioner interfered.

⁹Chief Jay Strongbow & Billy White Wolf won a three-team tournament, defeating The Executioners and Tor Kamata & Nikolai Volkoff.

¹⁰This was a tournament final. Shortly after Chief Jay Strongbow & Billy White Wolf won the belts, Billy White Wolf suffered an injured neck during a match against Ken Patera; he and Strongbow gave up the belts.

- ¹¹Bob Backlund & Pedro Morales won the title in two straight falls of a best-of-three-falls bout in this Shea Stadium contest. Backlund and Morales gave the belts back to the WWF shortly after the win, since Backlund was WWF World heavyweight champion at the time. The title was declared vacant and an elimination tournament ordered.
- ¹²This was the final round of an elimination tournament.
- ¹³This was a tournament final. The title had been declared vacant when Diesel and Shawn Michaels split up at The Survivor Series, on November 23, 1994.
- ¹⁴Earlier in the day on September 25, WWF President Gorilla Monsoon stripped Diesel and Shawn Michaels of the title and returned the belts to Owen Hart and Yokozuna.
- ¹⁵This was a tournament final; The Smokin' Gunns had been forced to vacate the title several months earlier when Billy suffered a neck injury.
- ¹⁶This was a tournament final to fill the vacancy created when Shawn Michaels walked out of the WWF for a brief period.
- ¹⁷This was a four-way match that also featured The Road Warriors and The Godwinns.
- ¹⁸Jack and Funk appeared to win the title one night earlier in a "dumpster" match in Boston, but it was later determined that they failed to lock Gunn and James in the official dumpster for the win, so the title was held up and a rematch ordered.
- ¹⁹This was a four-team match also involving Rocky Maivia and D-Lo Brown, and Billy Gunn and Jesse James.
- ²⁰Mankind chose to defend the title on his own when Kane refused to team with him.

NWA HEAVYWEIGHT TITLE

(NOTE: There are several key points to remember in viewing this list of NWA champions: (1) With the help of additional sources examined for this almanac, this listing contains many modifications, additions, and corrections from previous versions of the NWA title lineage printed in Pro Wrestling Illustrated or our sister publications. (2) The NWA that most fans know of today, the National Wrestling Alliance, was actually formed in 1948; a second NWA, the National Wrestling Association, came into being in 1929. (3) At various times throughout this century, the lineage of the title has been broken, most recently prior to Chris Candido's winning of the belt; special attention should be paid to the late-'20s and early-'30s, during which time the world title splintered into several factions and lineage remains fuzzy at best. As a result we've done our best to highlight major breaks from the main line, and reconnect the lineage where appropriate.)

FOOTNOTES:

¹During the first few years of the century, George Hackenschmidt had won world championship tournaments in Italy, Germany, and England. As a result of this match, by defeating American champion Tom Jenkins in two straight falls, he became recognized as top champion in North America.

²George Hackenschmidt left the ring, refusing to return, and the referee awarded the title to Gotch, who retired in 1913; his last match was a victory over George Lurich on April 9.

³Charlie Cutler had defeated Henry Ordeman and Jesse Westegard in a tournament, and had laid claim to the world title.

⁴Earl Caddock was awarded the title by the referee when Joe Stecher refused to return to the ring after the second fall.

⁵As a result of this match, Dick Shikat became recognized as the first champion of the National Wrestling Association (NWA), a division of the National Boxing Association.

⁶Henry DeGlane won the title by disqualification.

⁷This match on Long Island, New York, was billed as a world championship match, and was designed to halt the controversy that was splitting the sport at the time. Jim Londos was subsequently stripped of his title for refusing to meet the winner of this bout. Ed "Strangler" Lewis later affirmed his claim on the title with an October 10, 1932, victory over Jack Sherry.

⁸Ed Don George had been claiming rights to the world title ever since he defeated Henry DeGlane in Boston in 1933. Danno O'Mahony, because of his victories over Jim Londos, Ed Don George, and Ed "Strangler" Lewis, became the closest thing to undisputed world champion at the time, representing a unification of sorts of the splintering of the world title that had taken place for several years.

⁹During his title reign, Ali Baba was disqualified in a match against Dave Lewin held in Newark, New Jersey. The State Athletic Commission reversed the match decision and allowed Ali Baba to keep the title. Soon thereafter, however, a rule change was made which stated that the title cannot change hands on a disqualification.

¹⁰The NWA decided to recognize Everett Marshall as champion because Steve Crusher Casey was out of the country and failed to defend the title on a regular basis.

¹¹The National Wrestling Alliance was organized in July 1948. At that particular time, Orville Brown was recognized as champion. Forced to retire due to injuries received in a November 11, 1949, auto accident, Brown relinquished his claim on the title. Lou Thesz was scheduled to meet Brown in a title match in St. Louis on November 25, 1949.

¹²Time of the match: 20:38. Ric Flair is (according to WCW officials in April 1992) the first WCW World champion; Sting, therefore, as of April 1992, is a one-time NWA and one-time WCW World champion. In September 1991, Flair signed with the WWF and the NWA title was declared vacant.

¹³This is a tournament final.

¹⁴The title was declared vacant in September 1993 when WCW withdrew from the NWA. It was renamed the WCW International title, held in the year that followed by Rick Rude, Hiroshi Hase, Rude again, Sting, then Flair again, but was finally abandoned when it was unified with the WCW World title at Clash of the Champions XXVII on June 23, 1994.

¹⁵This is a tournament final.

FOOTNOTES:

¹According to World Championship Wrestling, Ric Flair—who had been known worldwide as the NWA World champion—was acknowledged as the first WCW World champion during this reign.

²Ric Flair had been stripped of the WCW World title on July 1 after he could not come to a contractual agreement with WCW. Lex Luger and Barry Windham were determined to be the top contenders to the title.

³Randy Savage won the title in a 60-man battle royal at the World War III pay-per-view event. Hulk Hogan lost the title to The Giant on October 29 at Halloween Havoc due to a clause in the contract placed by Jimmy Hart that the belt could change hands on a disqualification; since the disqualification was due to Hart's interference, the title was declared vacant and put up for grabs in the World War III battle royal.

⁴Ric Flair won a triangle match against Sting and Lex Luger by countout earlier on the card to determine a challenger for Savage's title that night.

⁵Sting was ordered to surrender the title on January 8 because of the controversial endings of both the match in which he won the World title from Hogan (December 28) and the rematch the next night. This was a match for the vacant title.

FOOTNOTES:

¹In December 1981, the Andersons were stripped of the title for being unable to defend the belts due to an October 1981 injury to Gene Anderson.

²This was a tournament final.

³This was a tournament final. The title had been declared vacant when Rick Steamboat announced his retirement on December 25, 1983.

⁴Though Ivan & Nikita Koloff won the belts, any pair of the trio of Ivan & Nikita Koloff and Krusher Khrushchev were allowed to defend the title.

⁵This was a tournament final. Mike Rotundo & Steve Williams were stripped of the title after their May 7, 1989, defense against The Road Warriors, where Dan Spivey and Kevin Sullivan interfere on their behalf by attacking guest referee Nikita Koloff.

⁶The Steiners are regarded as the last NWA World tag team champions and the first WCW World tag team champions. A tag team tournament to fill the vacancy was held July 12, 1992, at the Great American Bash. The tourney was won by Terry Gordy & Steve Williams. Co-recognition of the champions as NWA/WCW World tag team champions continued through September 1, 1993, when WCW withdrew from the NWA, and the NWA in turn withdrew recognition of the champions, at the time Arn Anderson and Paul Roma, who then became known strictly as WCW World tag team champions.

⁷This was a tournament final. Rick & Scott Steiner were stripped of the title in late-July 1991 when Scott was forced out of action with a torn left biceps muscle.

⁸Lord Steven Regal was allowed to substitute for the injured Brian Pillman.

⁹Syxx substituted for Kevin Nash, who was sidelined with a knee injury.

¹⁰Because Sting and The Giant couldn't get along and wouldn't defend the title together, the WCW Executive Committee ordered them to wrestle each other in a singles match, with the winner getting the title and the right to select the co-holder of the title; Sting won and chose Kevin Nash.

¹¹Scott Steiner was allowed to defend the title on Hall's behalf (with The Giant) in a match against Rick Steiner and Buff Bagwell; Rick won the title by pinning The Giant after Bagwell walked out on him. The next night he chose Kenny Kaos to be the co-holder of the title.

FOOTNOTES:

¹Wahoo McDaniel was stripped of the title in September 1981 after being injured by Abdullah the Butcher. A tournament was ordered to fill the title vacancy.

²This match was a tournament final.

³Sgt. Slaughter was awarded the title when Wahoo McDaniel was unable to show up for a title match as the result of having sustained an injured left leg at the hands of Magnificent Muraco and Roddy Piper.

⁴Greg Valentine was awarded the title when the match was halted due to a bloody gash over Roddy Piper's left ear that rendered him unable to continue.

⁵The title was held up and vacated after this bout due to the interference of Tully Blanchard, who hit Rick Steamboat in the head with a chair.

⁶This match was a tournament final.

⁷This match was the final bout in a best-of-seven series to fill the vacancy created in May 1986 when Magnum T.A. was stripped of the title for attacking NWA President Bob Geigel.

⁸This match was a tournament final. Dusty Rhodes had been stripped of the title in April 1988 for hitting NWA President Jim Crockett with a baseball bat.

⁹This match was a tournament final. The title had been declared vacant when Lex Luger won the WCW World title on July 14, 1991.

¹⁰This match had been intended as a bout to determine the number-one contender to Rick Rude's title. When Rude was stripped of the belt in December 1992 for failing to defend it (he was injured), the bout instead became a contest to determine a new champion.

¹¹This match was to fill the title vacancy. The title had been declared vacant in May 1993 as the result of a controversial double-pin situation between Dustin Rhodes and Rick Rude.

¹²Steve Austin had been awarded the title earlier in the evening via forfeit when Steamboat, his original opponent for the night, was unable to wrestle due to a back injury.

¹³Big Van Vader is stripped of the title in early-April 1995 for multiple violent offenses.

¹⁴This was a tournament final to fill the title vacancy.

¹⁵The title was declared vacant in September after Flair suffered a shoulder injury.

¹⁶This was a tournament final to fill the title vacancy.

¹⁷Hart and Page were deemed the top two contenders when Goldberg gave up the U.S. title upon capturing the World title.

FOOTNOTES:

¹This was the final round of a tournament to determine the NWA television champion. Dick Slater's U.S. title, of course, was not on the line in this match. Also note that in a semifinal encounter vs. Assassin #2, Mark Youngblood put feet up on middle ropes to gain the pinfall.

²This was a tournament final. The title was declared vacant when Dusty Rhodes was unable to defend the belt due to an injury.

³This was a "first blood" match at Starrcade '86.

⁴The belt had been held up since July 23, 1989, when Sting pinned The Great Muta, but tapes later showed that Muta's shoulders were off the mat.

⁵This was a best-of-three-falls match.

⁶This was Clash of the Champions XX. It was also a no-DQ match with Paul E. Dangerously locked in a cage suspended above the ring. Rick Steamboat won with a flying bodypress off the top rope.

⁷This was the final round of a tournament to determine a new champion. Scott Steiner was stripped of the title when he went to the WWF in November 1992.

⁸Stevie Ray defended the title on behalf of his brother while Booker T was out with a knee injury.

¹This was the tournament final for the newly created division.

²Armstrong was stripped at Clash of the Champions XX on September 2 for not defending within a 30-day period. A tournament was scheduled for early-1993 but never took place.

³This was a tournament final.

⁴Malenko gave up the belt several weeks after he won it when Jericho protested that he never signed a contract to wrestle Malenko, who earned his title shot by winning a cruiserweight battle royal under a mask on May 17. This match was for the vacant title; Jericho won by disqualification.

FOOTNOTES:

¹Jimmy Snuka and Wildman Bellomo won separate battle royals to advance to a match in which the winner was awarded the first ECW heavyweight title.

²Shane Douglas won the title by forfeit when Tito Santana did not appear for the match.

³Shane Douglas pinned Terry Funk in an eight-man tag team match; due to a prematch stipulation, the title changed hands. Also, on August 27, 1994, Eastern Championship Wrestling was renamed Extreme Championship Wrestling.

⁴The Sandman defeated previous champion Mikey Whipwreck and Steve Austin in a triangle match for the title.

⁵Stevie Richards substituted for Raven in a tag team match that had as a stipulation that if he got pinned, Raven would lose the belt.

⁶Shane Douglas was victorious over both Sabu and Terry Funk in this three-way elimination match.

Mikey Whipwreck needed every move in his arsenal to beat The Sandman for the ECW title on October 28, 1995.

²This was a tournament final; the title had been declared vacant earlier in 1987 when Tatsumi Fujinami and Kengo Kimura split up their team.

³IWGP officials declared the title vacant when Scott Steiner failed to appear for a scheduled title defense. Rick Steiner was allowed to choose a partner and wrestle Hiroshi Hase & The Great Muta for the vacant title.

⁴This match was held to fill the title vacancy created when Hiroshi Hase & The Great Muta stepped down from the championship shortly after Muta won the IWGP heavyweight title on May 3, 1995.

⁵The title was declared vacant a few days prior to this bout when it was determined that Masa Chono & Hiroyoshi Tenzan couldn't defend the championship on this date due to personal reasons (Chono's father passed away).

⁶This was the final match of a tournament held to fill the vacancy created when Keiji Muto and Chono gave up the title due to Muto's knee injury.

FOOTNOTES:

¹August 1960 saw the formation of the American Wrestling Association. Title recognition was given to Verne Gagne who, at the time, was generally recognized as the uncrowned champion in wrestling.

²It was later discovered that Mr. M was Dr. Bill Miller.

³Verne Gagne held the title until his retirement on May 10, 1981.

⁴Nick Bockwinkel was awarded the title due to Verne Gagne's retirement, his No. 1 ranking at the time, and his status as former champion.

⁵Nick Bockwinkel was scheduled to challenge Stan Hansen for the belt. Hansen left the arena, and it was determined by AWA President Stanley Blackburn that if he did not return by the end of the last match on the card, the title would be awarded to Bockwinkel by default. It was.

⁶The title was officially awarded to Curt Hennig on May 13, 1987, when, by a 4-2 vote, an AWA review board determined through videotape replay that there was no evidence Larry Zbyszko illegally aided Hennig.

⁷This was a battle royal victory; Larry Zbyszko last eliminated Tom Zenk to win the title. Jerry Lawler had been stripped of the title by AWA President Stanley Blackburn for missing seven mandatory title defenses in AWA territories.

⁸Larry Zbyszko was stripped of the title on December 12, 1990, when he left the AWA for WCW. Shortly thereafter, the AWA folded.

FOOTNOTES:

- ¹Tiny Mills & Stan Kowalski were NWA International and NWA World tag team champions, and held the belts when the latter title was renamed the AWA World tag team title.
- ²Len Montana's leg was broken in a March 1961 bout; Hardboiled Haggerty chose Gene Kiniski as he replacement partner.
- ³Hardboiled Haggerty and Gene Kiniski had split up while champions; Haggerty chose Bob Geigel as his new partner.
- ⁴This was the final of a nine-team tournament. The title had been declared vacant earlier in the month when Otto Von Krupp was injured.
- ⁵Larry Hennig's leg had been broken some time before this match by Verne Gagne, forcing Harley Race to choose a replacement partner.
- ⁶Red Bastien chose Crusher as his new partner after Hercules Cortez was killed in an automobile accident in Minnesota on July 23, 1971.
- ⁷Pat Patterson and Ray Stevens were awarded the belts by AWA President Stanley Blackburn when Jim Brunzell injured himself in a softball game and the championship team of Brunzell and Greg Gagne were unable to defend the belts.
- ⁸Verne Gagne was vacationing in Europe at the time of the bout; Adonis and Ventura were awarded the belts by default.
- ⁹Doug Somers was allowed to substitute for Boris Zukhov, who had moved from the AWA to the WWF.
- ¹⁰This was a tournament final. The title had been declared vacant on September 18, 1989, when Ken Patera was injured by Wayne Bloom and Mike Enos.
- ¹¹D.J. Peterson & The Trooper were the last champions. The AWA folded shortly thereafter.

FLORIDA STATE HEAVYWEIGHT TITLE

FOOTNOTES:

¹Dory Funk Jr. was awarded the title via forfeit when Barry Windham, injured in an auto accident, was unable to defend the title.

²This match was the last round of a title tournament. Bruiser Brody had been stripped of the title when an August 24, 1982, match between Brody and Brian Blair reached an irresponsible level of brutality.

³This was a tournament final. The title had been declared vacant when Mike Graham was injured and unable to defend the title for 30 days.

⁴This is a tournament final. Barry Windham had been stripped of the title when he left Florida to compete in Japan.

⁵This is a tournament final. The title had been declared vacant several weeks earlier when Hercules Hernandez left Florida to compete in the WWF.

⁶This match was to determine the champion after the title had been held up following a match in which Ron Bass used chloroform against Barry Windham.

⁷Mike Rotundo gave the title belt to Rick Steiner in December 1988. He was subsequently stripped of the title, and the championship was abandoned later that month.

FOOTNOTES:

¹This is a tournament final.

²Paul Orndorff relinquished the championship belt on television in Atlanta on July 31, 1982. He claimed defending the belt took too much time away from preparations for NWA World title matches with Ric Flair.

³This was the final round of a round-robin tournament.

⁴Killer Brooks defeated Paul Orndorff in the scheduled title match. Larry Zbyszko bought the title from Brooks for $25,000. Zbyszko was subsequently stripped of the title, on April 30, 1983. A tournament was ordered to determine the new champion.

⁵This is the final round of a title tournament; see note 4, above.

⁶Brad Armstrong masqueraded as Mr. R and was unmasked by Ted DiBiase, who thought it would be Tommy Rich under the mask. While Rich waved at DiBiase from Gordon Solie's broadcast podium, a shocked DiBiase became the victim of Armstrong's pin.

⁷Wahoo McDaniel was defeated by Nikita Koloff in a match to unify the National and U.S. titles, on September 28, 1986 in Atlanta. See U.S. title chart (page 76) for more information.

FOOTNOTES:

¹This was the final of a tournament that had begun on March 18, 1972.

²This match was to fill the title vacancy created on December 6, 1972, when a match between champion Harley Race and challenger Johnny Valentine ended in double-disqualification.

³This was a tournament final. The title had been vacated following Harley Race's defeat of Ric Flair for the NWA World title.

⁴This title was abandoned roughly six months after Harley Race's victory.

FOOTNOTES:

¹Title held up the next day because Wahoo McDaniel had interfered in the match. Von Erich won rematch on October 21, 1969, in Dallas.

- ²This was a tournament final to fill the vacant title.
³This was an awarded title.
⁴This was an awarded title.
⁵Title held up December 20, 1980, after a match against Kevin Von Erich.
⁶Kerry Von Erich substituted for Kevin in match for held-up title.
⁷Fritz Von Erich retires after match.
⁸This was an awarded title.
⁹Title held up after match against Jimmy Garvin on July 11, 1983.
¹⁰World Class seceded from the NWA and claimed this was a "world title" match.
¹¹Awarded title by forfeit when Von Erich no-shows.
¹²Fujinami wins title by countout in accordance with World Class rules, but voluntarily returns the belt.
¹³Title unifies with USWA heavyweight; lineage resumes in that section.

FOOTNOTES:

¹This was the main event of the SuperClash II pay-per-view. The match was stopped due to Kerry Von Erich bleeding too heavily. Jerry Lawler, who held the AWA World title at the time, unified that title with Von Erich's World Class heavyweight title; the unified championship became known as the USWA heavyweight title.

²This was the final bout in a 21-man tournament. The Snowman had been stripped of the title on August 27 after he was injured and could not defend the belt within the required 30-day period.

³This was a Survivor Series final, an eight-man match that saw Jerry Lawler pin Tatanka in a bout pitting Lawler, Jeff Jarrett, & The Moondogs against Tatanka, Tommy Rich, & The Dog Catchers.

⁴This was a battle royal to fill the title vacancy created when Randy Savage left the USWA just a few days earlier.

⁵Jerry Lawler forfeited the title because he was injured by Sid Vicious earlier on the card and could not appear for the scheduled match.

⁶This was a tournament final; Jarrett had to vacate the title because of a back injury.

⁷The Memphis-based promotion, in the midst of legal entanglements, ceased running cards in the fall of 1997.

PROFESSIONAL WRESTLING: YEAR-BY-YEAR

In this section, we provide an overview of some of the more memorable dates in wrestling history, including unusual incidents, events, and other fascinating material related to the development of the sport and the public appearances of the stars over the years. To assemble this section, we pored through decades of newspaper clippings, magazine articles, and published books. Our thanks to wrestling historians Joseph R. Svinth, Fred Hornby, and J Michael Kenyon for their valuable contributions. We posthumously also thank Manny Velasquez for his contribution to the Obituaries section beginning on page 152. If you have newspaper clippings, magazine articles, or other solid information you feel would be an asset to this year-by-year overview of the sport in next year's PWI Almanac, please send them to PWI Almanac, P.O. Box 1168, Fort Washington, PA 19034. This section does not include a rundown of 1998 (see pages 6-15)

1764

Richard Carew of London publishes The Survey Of Cornwall. In it, he describes contemporary English wrestling in detail. According to Carew, Cornwall wrestlers wore short jackets and gripped one another's sleeve and shoulders as in modern judo. A standard trick involved trapping the right arm and then backheel tripping. The Cornwall style was called "in-play." Devonshire wrestlers wore straw shinguards and clogs, and were allowed to kick one another in the shins. Otherwise their techniques were similar. The Devonshire style was called "in-play." Lancashire wrestlers wore tight jackets or underwear. The players stood well apart with their knees bent and hands outstretched. While kicking, hair-pulling, pinching, and the twisting of arms and fingers were prohibited, the full-nelson hold to the neck was allowed, probably because it is so easily escaped by standing wrestlers. Lancashire wrestling was also known as "catch-as-catch-can," and is an ancestor of both Olympic free-style and American professional wrestling.

1769

Near Westminster Bridge in London, a former cavalryman named Philip Astley establishes England's first modern circus. The first shows were mostly equestrian acts, but within a few years they also included acrobatic acts, clowns, and humorous skits. In 1806, Astley moved his amphitheater into a building called the Olympic Theatre, and added boxing, wrestling, and horse racing to his venue.

1798

During a North Country wrestling meet held at Soukerry, England, the 18-year old William Richardson of Caldbeck scores his first professional wrestling victory. A joiner by trade, Richardson never had a single fall recorded against him between 1801 and 1809, despite attending nearly every event in the country. A strongly built man with round shoulders and back, Richardson stood 5'9" in height and weighed about 200 pounds. His official prize was usually a leather belt with his name on it and enough cloth to make a pair of pants. As with boxing, the real money rode on the side bets.

1811

The Marquis of Queensberry and the Earl of Lonsdale are among the 12,000 spectators who watch the wrestling matches held during the annual horse races at Carlisle. The promoters of the races preferred wrestling to boxing because the wrestling crowds were judged less likely to riot.

Circa 1830

Irish immigrants introduce collar-and-elbow wrestling into New England. The style was often used by the Irish to settle arguments, and was known as "collar-and-elbow" after the initial stances taken as defenses against kicking, punching, and rushing. The style became widely known during the American Civil War, and formed the basis for the American professional wrestling techniques of the 1870s and 1880s.

1837

The Highland Games are introduced at Braemar, Scotland. These games were the progenitors of modern track-and-field, and of professional sports in general. They also helped popularize Cumberland wrestling, which had been popular mainly in London and Northern England. To ensure proper decorum, a prize of a gold guinea was awarded for the neatest costume. (Said costume consisted of long underwear, stocking feet, and a pair of shorts.) To ensure equitable matches, four weight divisions were used. Matches only began when the wrestlers had fair holds behind one another's backs, or five minutes had passed. Victory was determined by best of three falls. Failure to keep one's hands gripped behind the other's back or touching the ground with any part of the body other than the feet constituted a fall.

1856

Due to a spate of crudely fixed matches, professional wrestling and savate are banned in Paris. This causes the Montesquieu salon to become a restaurant, and many French boxers and wrestlers to move to Belgium, Greece, and the Americas.

1873

Wrestling's first masked wrestler enters the ring, in Paris. He is known simply as The Masked Wrestler.

1874

Viro Small, a former slave from Beaufort, South Carolina, becomes North America's first known African American professional wrestler. Small's training involved hauling beer kegs and sauerkraut barrels around New York City. His venue was a tavern named the "Bastille Of The Bowery."

1877

February 6: William Muldoon wins the Greco-Roman championship from French champion

Christol in two straight falls of 10 and 17 minutes. He also wins about $2,000 in side bets.

1878

April 27: Frank Gotch is born on a farm near Humboldt, IA.

July 20: George Hackenschmidt, later nicknamed "The Russian Lion," is born in Dorpat, Russia; his mother is Swedish, his father is German.

1880

By defeating Thiebaud Bauer of Germany, William Muldoon becomes the United States' first famous wrestling champion. An avid physical culturalist, Muldoon also had done some prize fighting. He preferred wrestling, though, as the purses were larger: $7 to the winner and $3 to the loser, instead of $3 to the winner and $2 to the loser.

January 19: William Muldoon defeats Thiebaud Bauer at Gilmore's Gardens (later site of Madison Square Garden) in a best-of-three-falls match to emerge with the Greco-Roman championship. The bout draws more than 3,000 fans.

1881

The National Police Gazette coins the phrase "the championship of the world." The idea was to sell newspapers describing a bare-knuckle boxing match between the Irish-born Paddy Ryan and the Boston-born John L. Sullivan.

1885

September 26: Australia's first professional wrestling bout, William Miller vs. Clarence Whistler, is staged at Melbourne's Theatre Royal. Whistler won, but died afterward. The cause of death was internal bleeding caused by ingesting glass while eating a champagne glass after the match.

1887

Circus magnate P.T. Barnum hires wrestler Ed Decker, the "Little Wonder From Vermont," as a sideshow attraction. Barnum offered to pay $100 to anyone who could pin the 5'6", 150-pound Decker, and $50 to anyone who could avoid being pinned within three minutes.

Wrestler William Muldoon faces off against boxer John L. Sullivan before a crowd of about 2,000 in a baseball park in Gloucester, MA. According to boxing and wrestling historian Nat Fleischer, Muldoon slammed Sullivan, and "the crowd rushed in and stopped the combat."

March 14: Evan "Strangler" Lewis (the original Strangler Lewis) beats Joe Acton in Chicago, IL, to win the American Catch-as-Catch Can championship.

1891

Richard Kyle Fox and the National Police Gazette sponsor a women's championship wrestling match in New York City. To prevent hair pulling, the women cut their hair short, and to keep everything "decent," the women wore tights. (Not all matches were so prim; in 1932, Frederick Van Wyck recollected some matches of his youth that were between "two ladies, with nothing but trunks on.") Fox's wrestlers included Alice Williams and Sadie Morgan.

1893

March 2: Evan "Strangler" Lewis defeats Ernest Roeber in New Orleans, LA, to unify the American Catch-as-Catch Can and American Greco-Roman championships. The match is a best of five falls with alternating catch-as-catch can and Greco-Roman falls.

1894

Despite his comparatively small size (5'10", 170 pounds), Martin "Farmer" Burns wins the U.S. catch-as-catch-can heavyweight championship. Following this success, Burns started training other athletes, including Frank Gotch, who was arguably the best North American wrestler of the 20th century.

1895

April 20: Martin "Farmer" Burns defeats Evan "Strangler" Lewis, three falls to two, in Chicago to capture the American heavyweight championship.

1896

September: George Hackenschmidt makes his wrestling debut.

1897

January 2: Jim Londos is born Chris Theophilos in Argos, Greece. The youngest of 13 children, Londos' father was a Greek amateur champion.

Jim Londos

October 26: Dan McLeod beats Martin "Farmer" Burns in Indianapolis, IN, to capture the American heavyweight championship.

1899

In Vienna, George Hackenschmidt wins the European heavyweight wrestling championship. The event was billed as the "world championships," but the omissions were so glaring that calling them the European championships seems much more precise.

April 2: Frank Gotch makes his pro debut, defeating Marshall Green in Humboldt, IA.

1900

After winning the Russian national wrestling championships, George Hackenschmidt follows up with convincing wins in Dresden, Budapest, and Paris. After these triumphs, Hackenschmidt then sets up camp in a London music hall. Hackenschmidt offered £10 to any British wrestler he failed to throw in 10 minutes, £25 to any British wrestler he failed to throw in 15 minutes, and £100 to any British wrestler who succeeded in throwing him in 15 minutes. The stipulation "British wrestlers" was intentional, as it kept dangerous foreign wrestlers like Ghulam Pahelwan of Amritsar from walking on stage and ruining what was quickly becoming a lucrative business.

1901

San Francisco promoters introduce tag team wrestling as a way of improving the sport's entertainment value. Another California innovation was 18-foot padded mats laid atop risers. While both are now almost traditional in American professional wrestling, neither innovation became especially popular outside San Francisco until the 1930s.

November 7: Tom Jenkins defeats Dan McLeod to win the American heavyweight title.

1902

December 26: Dan McLeod defeats Tom Jenkins in Worcester, MA, to regain the American heavyweight championship. Jenkins took the first fall in 59:00, while McLeod came back to win the second fall at 24:00. Jenkins forfeited the match and the title 20 minutes into the third fall due to a leg injury (later revealed to be blood poisoning).

1903

February 22: Tom Jenkins defeats Frank Gotch in Cleveland, OH, in the first meeting of the dominant American wrestlers of the era.

April 3: Tom Jenkins defeats Dan McLeod in Buffalo, NY, in straight falls (1:17:00 and 14:30) to regain the American heavyweight championship.

1904

January 27: Frank Gotch beats Tom Jenkins in Bellingham, WA, to win the American heavyweight championship for the first time. Gotch took the first fall by pinfall, while Jenkins was disqualified in the second fall for fouling Gotch.

1905

February 2: Tom Jenkins is heavily criticized by his hometown press for running out of gas late in his unsuccessful title challenge against American heavyweight champion Frank Gotch in Cleveland. Jenkins took the first fall, with Gotch sweeping the last two.

March 15: Tom Jenkins defeats Frank Gotch at Madison Square Garden to regain the American heavyweight championship. After splitting the first two falls, Jenkins dug down and took the third fall in 10:31 to win the title for a record third time.

May 5: World Greco-Roman champion George Hackenschmidt thoroughly dominates American heavyweight champion Tom Jenkins in two straight falls at Madison Square Garden in a match to crown the World Catch-as-Catch-Can heavyweight champion. The match is the origin of the World heavyweight title in the United States.

May 19: In the crowning moment of his career, Tom Jenkins comes back two weeks after his thrashing at the hands of Hackenschmidt to defeat Frank Gotch at Madison Square Garden to retain his American heavyweight championship. The match, arguably the most epic of the decade, sees Jenkins take the first fall in 1:27:57, and Gotch evening it up by taking the second fall in 36:27. Jenkins came back to overpower Gotch to take the third fall at 11:10. A battered and exhausted Gotch had to be carried from the ring by his seconds.

May 23: Frank Gotch defeats Tom Jenkins to regain the American heavyweight championship. Jenkins takes the first fall in 26:00, but Gotch finishes strongly to take the last two falls in 14:00 and 17:00.

December 1: Arguably the biggest upset in pro wrestling history sees Fred Beell, outweighed by 50 pounds, beat Frank Gotch in New Orleans, LA, to win the American heavyweight championship. Beell won the third fall by throwing Gotch over the edge of mat, with Gotch striking his head on the floor. When the dazed Gotch was returned to the ring, Beell finished him off fast to take the title.

December 17: Frank Gotch beats Fred Beell in two one-sided falls in Kansas City, MO, to regain the American heavyweight championship and record-tying third time.

1907

October 4: Leopold McLaglan (brother of actor Victor McLaglen) wrestles T.H. Kanada in a wrestling vs. jujitsu match held in New Westminster, British Columbia. While the referee called it a no-contest after watching McLaglan lay on top of Kanada for two hours, McLaglan subsequently advertised himself as the jujitsu champion of the world.

1908

April 3: Frank Gotch beats George Hackenschmidt at Chicago's Dexter Park Pavilion to win the World heavyweight title in a match that was three years in the making. The match was highly controversial, with Hackenschmidt claiming Gotch doused himself in oil or other substances to make himself impossible to grasp. In addition, all newspaper reports showed Gotch refusing to lock up and liberally using fouls and roughhouse tactics to damage the champion. After the ref turned a deaf ear to his appeals, Hackenschmidt finally quit the match after two hours and three minutes. The referee ruled Hackenschmidt had forfeited and awarded the title to Gotch.

1909

April 14: Frank Gotch, in his first big U.S. match following a U.K. tour, defeats Bulgarian wrestler Yussiff Mahmoud in two straight falls (8:00, 9:10) at Chicago's Dexter Park Pavilion.

November 25: Frank Gotch beats Stanislaus Zbyszko in a non-title match in Buffalo, NY. It's their first meeting, and the buzz begins for a title match between the two.

A Muslim wrestler known as Gama the Great easily defeats a highly regarded U.S. professional wrestler named Benjamin Franklin Roller in London. Gama then issued a challenge to George Hackenschmidt, but the Estonian dodged the bout by suddenly remembering a pressing engagement in Switzerland. Therefore Gama was instead paired with the European Greco-Roman champion Stanislaus Zbyszko. Although Zbyszko avoided being pinned by stalling for 2 hour 40 minutes, he too failed to show for the scheduled rematch. As a result, Gama was named the British national champion.

April: A Federal court convicts John C. Maybray, Joe Carroll, Bert Warner, and other wrestlers and promoters of using the U.S. mail to illegally rig the results of wrestling matches. All Maybray had to say was, "I never bilked an honest man."

June 1: In what may have been his crowning achievement, Frank Gotch defeats Stanislaus Zbyszko in the first fall of a Chicago contest in 6.4 seconds! Gotch went on to take the second fall in 27:33 to retain the World title.

February: Wrestler Charley Olson returns home to Indianapolis after accidentally killing a Texas wrestler calling himself McRay. Five years earlier, Olson had also accidentally killed another wrestler in Montreal. The Texan died after being driven into the mat using a crotch hold while the wrestler in Montreal died after being thrown from the ring and hitting his head on a chair.

September 4: Three years after their controversial first match, Frank Gotch and George Hackenschmidt wrestle each other at Comiskey Park in Chicago. Gotch dominates to take straight falls over Hackenschmidt, who severely injured his knee in training for the match. The live gate of $87,053 (tickets range from $1 to $10) is the biggest ever at the time.

April 1: Frank Gotch announces his retirement after beating George Lurich in Kansas City, MO.

1915

July 4: Joe Stecher beats Charlie Cutler in Omaha, NE, to become the first widely recognized World heavyweight champion after the retirement of Frank Gotch.

October 20: In the first World title meeting between the two wrestlers who would dominate the era, Joe Stecher beats Ed "Strangler" Lewis in Evansville, IN, to retain the title. Stecher won after 2:03:00 of the first fall when Lewis was unable to continue after being driven out of the ring and hitting his head on the floor.

Ed "Strangler" Lewis

November 1915 to January 1916: An international tournament is held at the Manhattan Opera House featuring many of the top stars of the era. Among the wrestlers are Ed "Strangler" Lewis, Alex Aberg, Waldek Zbyszko, B.F. Roller, and Charles Cutler. The talk of the tournament is The Masked Marvel, a hooded wrestler who came out of the crowd and demanded to be entered. The promoters finally relent, allowing Marvel to debut on December 9. Aberg eventually beats Zbyszko in the tourney final, while Lewis finishes in third place.

January 27: Joe Stecher retains the World title by beating The Masked Marvel in straight falls at Madison Square Garden. The Marvel was revealed to be Mort Henderson.

July 5: Joe Stecher and Ed "Strangler" Lewis wrestle to a legendary five-hour draw in Omaha, NE. Lewis was soundly hooted by the crowd for wrestling defensively and making no attempts to go on the offense against the champion. Some fans at points showered the ring seat cushions to show their displeasure.

July 18: Frank Gotch fractures his leg in an exhibition match with Bob Managoff Sr. at a Sells-Floto Circus performance in Kenosha, Wisconsin; the great champion would never wrestle again.

Jim Londos makes his professional debut.

April 9: Joe Stecher forfeits the World title to Earl Caddock in Omaha, NE. Stecher won the first fall in 1:22:05. Caddock evened the match by taking the second fall in 1:40:10. Stecher claimed he wasn't pinned and was so livid that he refused to wrestle the third fall.

1920

January 30: After beating Waldek Zbyszko and Ed "Strangler" Lewis in late-1919 to earn a title shot, Joe Stecher regains the World title by beating Earl Caddock in 2:05:30 at Madison Square Garden.

December 13: Ed "Strangler" Lewis beats Joe Stecher in 1:41:56 at the 71st Regiment Armory in New York to win the World title for the first time.

March: San Francisco's Ad Santel leads a troupe of European and Japanese American professional wrestlers to Japan. They did not attract nearly as much media attention as some concurrent boxing vs. wrestling acts called "Merikan," and as result, Santel said that in future he would not wrestle in Japan without first receiving cash guarantees from the Japanese promoters.

May 6: Nearly 11 years after his bitter defeat to Frank Gotch, Stanislaus Zbyszko finally wins the World title by beating Ed "Strangler" Lewis in 23:17 at the 22nd Regiment Armory in New York.

September 22: The New York State Athletic Commission takes wrestling under its control and issues stringent rules regarding the use of "strange" holds. Headlocks, toelocks, and scissorholds, which are used specifically to punish an opponent are to be foul methods, punishable by disqualification. Repeat offenders would have their licenses revoked.

September 30: Joe Stecher plays first base for Salt Lake City Bees of the Pacific Coast League for San Francisco with Oakland as opposition. Stecher singles in two runs in the fourth inning, going 1-for-4 at the plate, handling nine chances without error in the field. He was originally set to finish the season with the Bees, but then decided not to risk injury that might cause him to miss his October 4 match with Ed Lewis in San Francisco (which Stecher won on a referee's decision after a no-fall, two-hour bout).

November 8: New York State Athletic Commissioner William Muldoon redefines the Commission's rules to make an exception for holds that are applied as decisive elements in producing a fall.

Gobar Goho defeats Ad Santel in San Francisco to become the first Asian to win a "World Professional Wrestling Championship" in the United States.

December 30: Ed "Strangler" Lewis posts a $10,000 bond with a $25,000 side bet, agreeing to fight heavyweight boxing champion Jack Dempsey. A Wichita oil syndicate offers $300,000 for the bout.

1923

December 31: Ed "Strangler" Lewis meets a Fusen-ryu jujutsuka named Taro Miyake in Chicago for the "jujitsu championship of the world." To no one's surprise, Lewis, who was also Miyake's employer, won.

1924

December 2: Wrestler Nick Gotch defeats light heavyweight boxing champion Battling Siki in a wrestler vs. boxer match at Philadelphia.

1925

Vince McMahon Sr.'s, father, Jess McMahon, promotes the first boxing card in the "old" Madison Square Garden.

January 8: In one of the bigger upsets of all-time, Wayne Munn beats Ed "Strangler" Lewis in Kansas City to win the World title.

September 16: In Dallas, Texas, Japanese American Matty Matsuda successfully defends his world welterweight title against Boston's Joe Sylvio. Matsuda had started his wrestling career in 1905 after winning a sumo tournament held in Vancouver.

1927

April 13: Antonio Biasetton, the man who would gain wrestling fame as Antonino (Argentina) Rocca, is born, along with a twin sister, in Treviso, Italy.

June 23: Angelo Taramacchi defeats Alexander Yermerkoff in 9:22 at San Francisco's Dreamland Rink, in the words of the Associated Press, "without using any recognized wrestling hold."

October 27: Wrestler Joe Shimkus wins two pinfalls from boxer John Mack at Fort Hayes, Ohio.

December: Ad Santel introduces American-style professional wrestling to the Leichardt Stadium in Sydney, Australia.

1928

February 28: After chasing Joe Stecher for nearly three years, Ed "Strangler" Lewis wins the World title a third time, taking two out of three falls in just under 2½ hours in St. Louis.

1929

April 3: Joe Savoldi is secretly married to Audrey Koehler, age 19, at South Bend, IN. Savoldi never lived with her but was forced to withdraw from Notre Dame (and football stardom) on November 17, 1930. A month later, she sued for divorce, charging desertion.

June 7: The Grand Wizard is born Ernie Roth in Canton, OH.

August 23: Dick Shikat beats Jim Londos in Philadelphia to gain recognition as a World heavyweight champion from the New York and Pennsylvania State Athletic Commissions. The two commissions had withdrawn their recognition from reigning champion Gus Sonneberg.

1930

April 4: Hugh Nichols beats Joe Banaski in the National Boxing (Wrestling) Association tournament final in Cincinnati, OH, to become the World light heavyweight champion.

June 6: Jim Londos beats Dick Shikat in Philadelphia to win the New York and Pennsylvania version of the World title.

November: Promoters Atholl Oakeley and Jeff Dickson introduce American-style professional wrestling to London. Although the promoters called it "all-in" wrestling, the British press responded by calling it "baboon wrestling" and saying that people didn't want that kind of sport in England. By March 1934 even the staid William ("Apollo") Bankier of the National Sporting Club was starting to replace boxing with American-style wrestling. All-in wrestling shows went out of fashion during World War II, but resumed in 1946 under the direction of Norman Morrell, Lord Mountevans, and Maurice Webb.

1931

April 13: Ed "Strangler" Lewis beats Ed Don George in straight falls at Wrigley Field in Los Angeles to win a then-record fourth World championship.

May 4: The World title is fragmented further after a controversial finish in the Henri DeGlane-Ed "Strangler" Lewis match in Montreal. DeGlane claimed to have been bitten by Lewis, and the referee agreed and awarded the match and title to DeGlane. Lewis denied the foul and asserted that DeGlane bit himself to get a cheap win. As a result, DeGlane was recognized as champion in parts of New England and Canada, while Lewis was recognized in states such as California and Illinois.

June 29: What is presumed to be wrestling's first sleeperhold is applied by Jim Londos against Ray Steele in the main event of a card at New York's Yankee Stadium in front of 21,000 fans. The controversial hold helps Londos win victory at the 1:09:12 mark. "Simply a new hold I've perfected which shuts off the jugular vein," Londos said the next day in the New York Sun.

September 23: Former World champion Dick Shikat breaks his arm in an auto wreck in New York.

October 10: The New York Athletic Commission recognizes Ed "Strangler" Lewis as World heavyweight champion. The Commission had ordered Jim Londos to meet Lewis following Lewis' June 9 victory over Dick Shikat. When Londos refused, the Commission stripped him of title recognition.

October 17: Cliff White, 185, wrestler, defeats Ed Petich, 180, boxer, in the third round of a wrestler vs. boxer match in Portland, OR.

October 25: Paul Boesch makes his professional wrestling debut, defeating Benny Ginsburg in Staten Island, NY.

1933

Texas passes state laws legalizing and governing boxing and wrestling. Morris Siegel receives the first license issued in both sports.

February 20: Jim Browning brings Ed "Strangler" Lewis' final World title reign to a close by beating him at Madison Square Garden.

Toots Mondt

March 1: Gus Sonnenberg testifies in a Lawrence, MA, trial that he had consumed ginger ale, not beer, when he hit and killed patrolman Richard L. Morrissey in July, 1932.

April 7: Joe Savoldi scores a surprising pinfall win over Jim Londos in Chicago. Savoldi would claim Londos' version of the World title, and jumped to the New York wrestling promotions where he would lose to New York World champion Jim Browning. Londos ignored the loss to Savoldi and continued to bill himself as World champion.

April 13: A jury in Boston deadlocks on Gus Sonnenberg's $1-million libel suit vs. Boston Herald, stemming from a 1929 article.

April 13: Daisy Florence Savoldi, second wife of wrestler Joe Savoldi, wins a divorce in Los Angeles when she testifies the only time she knew her husband's whereabouts was when papers chronicled his progress from city to city; they were married August 20, 1931, separated October, 1932. She is granted $25 a week for two years as settlement.

April 14: Percy R. Gardner of Toronto pays $100,000 to wrestling promoters Jack Curley and Paul Bowser for a 50 percent share of Joe Savoldi's contract.

May 21: Joe Savoldi marries Miss Lola Poole in Buchanan, MI.

May 27: Jim Browning, recognized as World heavyweight wrestling champion in New York and a number of other states, appears in a nationally distributed newspaper advertisement for Adam Pantara Hats; other sports icons, such as Jack Dempsey, Maxie Rosenbloom, Benny Leonard, and Carl Hubbell appear in the same ad.

June 7: Stanislaus Zbyszko declared bankruptcy with $26,869 in debts against $256 in assets.

December 18: Jim Browning and Ed Don George meet in a unification World title match at Madison Square Garden. The match is declared a draw after 1:40:00.

1934

January 2: The New York State Athletic Commission investigates "secret agreements" and "title juggling" in wrestling, calling Rudy Miller, Jack Curley, Jim Londos, Toots Mondt, Ed White, Tom Packs, and Dick Shikat to a January 9 hearing. Peace is said to exist between the Londos-Curley factions, but Jack Pfeffer-Rudy Miller are on the outs, says New York Times.

January 9: After the witnesses testify, the New York State Athletic Commission says, in a statement: "We have heard all the testimony. We have sent it out to be translated into English. When that is done, we will consider it."

January 15: An expose is published in New York, quoting Jack Pfeffer as saying that Londos was determined to be the next champion in August 1929, before Londos beat Dick Shikat on August 29, 1929, for the world title. Pfeffer says both Jim Browning and Ed Don George are managed by Paul Bowser of Boston.

June 5: A White Owl cigar advertisement in the Seattle Post-Intelligencer features Gus

Sonnenberg, Yvon Robert, Chief Little Wolf, and Ernie Dusek.

1937

Mud wrestling is invented in Seattle, Washington ... by mistake. Promoter Paul Boesch used too much water on the dirt used for a "Hindu match" between Prince Bhu Pinder (real name: Ranjit Singh) and former champion Gus Sonnenberg. Mud wrestling then moved to San Francisco. There the ring was filled with mud and the bout filmed and shown in newsreels across the world. Women's mud-wrestling soon followed. The first match was held in January 1938. Photos of this exhibition, which featured Mildred Burke and Babe Gordon, subsequently appeared in Life.

January 28: In New York, wrestlers on the Hippodrome weekly card donate blood for Dave Levin, who was in critical condition from an infection suffered in the wake of the previous week's loss to Bobby Bruns.

February 9: Billy Wolfe defeats Clara Mortensen via disqualification in a man vs. woman bout in Atlanta.

March 11: Wrestlers, objecting to newspaper criticism, perform brief sit-down strike in a Washington, D.C., ring.

A crippled Argentine youth named Carlos tells reporters asking him why he liked watching the professional wrestler Antonino Rocca: "When I see him in the ring, I become Rocca. He gives me the feeling that I am living in the ring with him. I am big and strong. I am a conqueror. My legs are jumping with him." Added Rocca, who popularized professional wrestling's karate-style kicking, "You put a guy in a position to smile, and that is greatness. In the ring, I try to transmit the desire to smile." If this was a true statement of Rocca's philosophy, then he probably did not kill a Japanese wrestler named Okitaro in 1949 as his press agents have sometimes claimed.

February 13: Dory Dixon beats Al Kashey in Mexico City to win the NWA World light heavyweight title. The belt rapidly becomes the most prized in Mexico.

April 15: The Verne Gagne & Hans Schmidt vs. Boris & Nicolai Volkoff match sets off small riot at Milwaukee Arena before crowd of 3,434; Arena-Auditorium board bars wrestling for nearly a year in its aftermath.

May 10: Stan Hansen defeats Hulk Hogan in Tokyo in New Japan's annual MSG Tournament.

June 7: Terry Taylor beats Les Thorton in Roanoke, VA, to win the NWA World junior heavyweight title. Thorton would regain the belt two weeks later in the same city.

September 23: In Tokyo, Andre the Giant and Stan Hansen wrestle to a wild, out-of-control no-contest in one of the most anticipated matches of the year.

December 13: In the one of the biggest stories of the year in Japan, Stan Hansen secretly jumps from New Japan to All-Japan. Brody makes a surprise appearance, seconding Bruiser Brody and Jimmy Snuka in their match against Dory Funk Jr. and Terry Funk in the finals of All-Japan's annual tag tournament. Hansen interferes in the end to help Brody and Snuka win, setting off a melee that sets the tone for the run of violence Brody and Hansen would cause over the next two years as a team.

December 21: Andre the Giant is the subject of a profile in Sports Illustrated; up to that time, it is the longest profile of any individual athlete ever published by SI. The article is later condensed for Reader's Digest's June 1982 issue, and reprinted in its entirety in the Summer 1987 edition of Wrestling 87.

Steve Williams, at the time a senior in college, loses in the NCAA finals to Bruce Baumgartner by a score of 4-3; Baumgartner would go on to compete in the 1984 Olympics and capture the gold medal in wrestling ... WTBS' Georgia Championship Wrestling is renamed World Championship Wrestling.

May: The original Tiger Mask scores an amazing double by winning both the NWA and WWF versions of the junior heavyweight title on consecutive nights. First, on May 25 in Shizuoka, Japan, Tiger beats Les Thornton to win the NWA title. On the following night in Osaka, he beats Black Tiger to win the WWF title.

June: Vince McMahon Jr. and TitanSports purchases Capitol Wrestling Corporation from his father and other shareholders.

June 28: In one of the most memorable and dramatic moments in Madison Square Garden wrestling history, Jimmy Snuka performs his "superfly" flying bodypress from the top of the steel cage in a match against WWF World champion Bob Backlund. He misses, and Backlund escapes from the cage with his title reign intact.

July 4: WWF World champion Bob Backlund battles NWA World champion Ric Flair in Atlanta's Omni. The bout ends in a double-disqualification after about 20 minutes of furious action.

July 29: Comedian Andy Kaufman and Memphis mainstay Jerry Lawler appear on the Late Night With David Letterman show. Kaufman, wearing a neck brace due to an injury sustained in a match against "The King," gets into an obscenity-laced shouting match with Lawler, then throws Letterman's coffee in Lawler's face. The confrontation makes headlines on the entertainment pages of newspapers nationwide.

October 8: In a six-man tag bout in Koichi, Japan, Riki Choshu turns on partners Antonio Inoki and Tatsumi Fujinami. The turn marks the birth of the landmark Ishingun vs. Seikigun feud that flames all across Japan for the next two years as Choshu's Seikigun group rebels against the established New Japan powers, Inoki and Fujinami's Ishingun group.

December 25: Kerry Von Erich battles NWA World champion Ric Flair in a steel cage in Dallas with Freebird Michael Hayes serving as special referee. When Von Erich and Flair are both dazed after a mid-ring collision, Hayes places Von Erich on top of the champion. Von Erich won't accept the title that way, and Hayes becomes outraged, calling Von Erich an "idiot." As Von Erich leaves the cage, Hayes' Freebird partner, Terry Gordy, slams the cage door shut on Von Erich's head. That act ignited the Freebird-Von Erichs war that subsequently embroiled Texas for nearly five years.

OTHER CROWDS AND CARDS OF NOTE

Where else but the Tokyo Dome?

On March 21, 1991 in the Dome, 54,500 fans paid $3.2-million to see Tatsumi Fujinami and WCW World champion Ric Flair battle to a no-contest. On January 4, 1996, the second match between New Japan's Keiji Muto and the UWF's Nobuhiko Takada drew 64,000 fans and an estimated $5.5-million gate. Takada defeated Muto with a cross armbreaker in the main event. On February 10, 1990, 63,900 people paid $3.2-million to see Antonio Inoki & Seiji Sakaguchi come out of retirement to defeat Shinya Hashimoto & Masa Chono. On January 4, 1993, 63,500 paid approximately $3.5-million as Genichiro Tenryu defeated Riki Choshu. Two years later, on January 4, 1995, 62,500 paid approximately $4.8-million when IWGP heavyweight champion Shinya Hashimoto defeated Kensuke Sasaki. That attendance mark was equalled on January 4, 1997, when Hashimoto defeated Choshu. About four months later, on April 12, 60,500 fans came to the Dome to see Naoya Ogawa, making his pro debut, defeat Hashimoto with a sleeperhold. On April 2, 1995, 13 promotions in Japan got together for a cooperative card that drew about 60,000 fans. Comparable crowds were on hand in the Dome on May 1, 1998 (main event: Toshiaki Kawada pinned Mitsuharu Misawa), January 4, 1994 (main event: Genichiro Tenryu pinned Antonio Inoki), January 4, 1992 (main event: Riki Choshu pinned Tatsumi Fujinami), November 29, 1989 (main event: Akira Maeda defeated former Olympic judo medalist Willie Wilhelm via submission), and April 24, 1989 (1972 Olympic judo medalist Shota Chochoshvili defeated Antonio Inoki in the fifth round of a scheduled 10-round bout).

The Fukuoka Dome in Japan has also been the site of some significant crowds, most recently 55,000 on May 3, 1993 (main event: Antonio Inoki & Tatsumi Fujinami defeat Riki Choshu & Genichiro Tenryu). And the Osaka Dome drew a sellout 53,000 fans on May 3, 1997, to see Hashimoto avenge his loss to Ogawa of three weeks prior.

The Triple Mania event on April 30, 1993, was headlined by a retirement bout that saw Cien Caras defeat Konnan via countout. It drew about 48,000 fans to Plaza de Toros in Mexico City, Mexico.

In the United States, some significant attendance figures include: 62,167 at the Hoosier Dome in Indianapolis, Indiana, on April 5, 1992, for WrestleMania VIII ... 60,525 at the Alamodome in San Antonio on January 19, 1997, for the WWF's Royal Rumble (main event: Shawn Michaels beat "Psycho" Sid Vicious) ... 43,517 at Texas Stadium in Irving, Texas, on May 6, 1984, to see Kerry Von Erich capture the NWA World title from Ric Flair ... approximately 42,000 at Shea Stadium in New York on June 25, 1976, to see Bruno Sammartino defeat Stan Hansen, and the Giant defeat boxer Chuck Wepner, and the closed-circuit broadcast from Japan of Muhammad Ali vs. Antonio Inoki ... 40,671 at Shea Stadium in New York on August 9, 1980, to see Bruno Sammartino defeat Larry Zbyszko in a cage match, and Andre the Giant pin Hulk Hogan.

Prior to what many term "the modern era" of pro wrestling, a card at Chicago's Comiskey Park drew 38,622 fans to see Buddy Rogers defeat Pat O'Connor for the NWA World title; the live gate of $141,345 was a record at the time. And on September 20, 1934, 35,265 fans flocked to Wrigley Field in Chicago to see NWA World champion Jim Londos defend his title against Ed "Strangler" Lewis.

WRESTLING SUPERCARDS

In a sport that has no beginning and ending points within a calendar year, the supercard has often served as the culmination of a year's worth of activity, the one card on which lasting feuds are brought to a conclusion. Just what constitutes a supercard is a matter of interpretation. The size of the venue, the use of wrestlers who normally do not compete in the geographic area in which the card is held, the number of high-level championship matches—these are all considerations. The mere fact that a promoter touts his card as a supercard (e.g. any David Von Erich Parade of Champions after number three) does not necessarily make it so. One thing that is definitely so: The concept of the supercard did not begin with the advent of pay-per-view.

FLASHBACK 1961: For the first time in his career, Haystacks Calhoun (left) finds himself at a weight disadvantage. The 601-pounder from Morgan's Corner, Arkansas, actually weighed 1.49 pounds less than Happy Humphrey when they weighed in for their match at the Capitol Arena in Washington, D.C. Calhoun won by countout.
